LONDON, ENGLAND

In August 2015, RIMS executive director Newell Warde, PhD, opened the journal at the site of John Snow's famous water pump, in front of a pub named for the famous physician, near the corner of Broadwick and Cambridge Streets in the Soho section of Westminster, London. (See Commentary, page 9)

NEW YORK

Soumitri Barua, AB, MD'21, sent RIMJ this photo from her home where she is continuing her studies virtually due to the pandemic. She and co-authors contributed to this month's theme section, in the article, Intrahepatic Cholangiocarcinoma in a Patient with Hepatitis C: A Cautionary Tale. (page 30)

RHODE ISLAND

Emily Zhu, AB, who received her degree in Public Health and Public Policy at Brown this year, reads a current issue of RIMJ outside her apartment. She and co-authors offer an overview of a unique program at Hasbro and the Center for Primary Care in this issue, An Evaluation of Connect for Health: A Social Referral Program in RI. (page 65)

RHODE ISLAND

Timothy K. O'Rourke, MD, a urology resident/PGY3 at Brown and Rhode Island Hospital, paused in his busy schedule to send us this photo taken at his home. In this month's issue, he and co-authors provide an overview of his subspecialty, in Brown Urology: A Historical Perspective. (page 70)

RHODE ISLAND

Barbara Roberts, MD, FACC, who founded and directed the Women's Cardiac Center at The Miriam Hospital from 2002 to 2016, sent us this photo as she reviewed the May issue of RIMJ. To her right on the bookshelf is her most current book published in 2019, The Doctor Broad: A Mafia Love Story. Her author talks have now Zoomed into the virtual world, at least for the present.

She is also the author of How To Keep From Breaking Your Heart: What Every Woman Needs to Know About Cardiovascular Disease; Treating and Beating Heart Disease: a consumer's guide to cardiac medicines; and The Truth About Statins: Risks and Alternatives to Cholesterol-Lowering Drugs.
